Economic Commission for Latin America

Seventeenth session

Guatemala City, Guatemala 25 April - 5 May 1977

REPORT BY THE EXECUTIVE SECRETARY ON THE PUBLICATIONS PROGRAMME

77-4-889

BIBLIOTECA NACIONES UNIDAS MEXICO

1. At its fifteenth session, the Economic Commission for Latin America adopted resolution 324 (XV) on the CEPAL Publications Programme. In this resolution the Commission, inter alia, "strongly supports the implementation of the publications programme" of the secretariat "both as regards the internal printing of the two series of booklets and the external printing of its books by public and private publishers inside and outside Latin America"; "requests the competent United Nations authorities to provide the necessary facilities for implementing the publications programme and to devise procedures, within the framework of United Nations practice, which will be sufficiently flexible to enable CEPAL to issue its booklets and books at appropriate intervals and to distribute and sell them through the usual publishing channels at prices within the reach of Latin American students and readers"; and "requests the secretariat to examine urgently the publication requirements of CEPAL", and "to seek extra-budgetary funds for that purpose, if necessary".
2. In compliance with this resolution, the Executive Secretary:
 - (a) Established a publications programme whose general structure is outlined in annex 1.
 - (b) Set up a Publications Advisory Board to orient the programme in its broad lines.
 - (c) Decided to initiate publication of the CEPAL Review, in which connexion he appointed Mr. Raúl Prebisch as Director of the Review, and Mr. Adolfo Gurrieri as Technical Secretary. The Review, besides being a suitable vehicle for disseminating the thinking and activities of the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Agencies under its aegis (the Latin American Institute for Economic and Social Planning and the Latin American Demographic Centre), is in essence a forum in which the aim is to adopt a strict intellectual approach to the examination of all subjects related to economic and social development in /Latin America

Latin America, providing an opportunity for a frank exchange of views within the natural respect due to institutions and persons. Any person who has worked or is now working in CEPAL, ILPES or CELADE may contribute in a personal capacity to this debate. It is thus hoped to stimulate intellectual creativity and elevated discussion in connexion with the problems affecting Latin America, and to transmit to a wider public the concerns and aims underlying the activities of these institutions, the progress made in the review of Latin America's problems, and their possible solutions.

- (d) Decided to initiate publication of the series Cuadernos de la CEPAL and Cuadernos Estadísticos de la CEPAL. These Cuadernos are intended to disseminate information about the wide-ranging collective and individual studies stemming from the Commission's internal activities, to reflect different shades and approaches within the broad framework of institutional consensus, and to help to publicize the work done by CEPAL in fulfilment of the mandates of its Member States.
- (e) Set up a Publications Committee (i) to select the studies for publication as Cuadernos, as books, or in the CEPAL Review (this last at the suggestion of the Director of the Review); (ii) to watch over the quality of the studies included in these publications; (iii) to designate the persons who are to collaborate in the critical reading of the studies for selection purposes; (iv) to advise the Executive Secretary on priorities with respect to publications; (v) to ensure that the publications programme keeps a proper balance between economic and social, analytical and operational, questions; (vi) to give adequate space in the publications programme to the contributions of the sub-regional offices of CEPAL.

/(f) Provided

(f) Provided for: the gradual renovation of the equipment and facilities of the CEPAL/ILPES Reproduction Section, as funds permitted, so that it could cope with its new tasks; an improvement in the system of distribution of CEPAL publications through the preparation, with the collaboration of CLADES, of complete lists of users interested in the different subjects studied by the organization, with a view to more efficient distribution through the use of computers; and the establishment of contacts with publishers and distributors in Latin America and the Caribbean in order to promote and dynamize arrangements for the sale of CEPAL publications through them.

3. As a result of this action, CEPAL has been disseminating its studies through new publications and extending their distribution to new areas and sectors. Special attention has been given in compliance with the provisions of resolution 324 (XV) as regards prices within the reach of Latin American readers, in which respect CEPAL has enjoyed the understanding and support of the Headquarters Publications Board, and in particular of its Chairman, Mr. Bohdan Lewandowski.

4. At the same time, keeping in mind the repeated recommendations of the General Assembly that the United Nations Secretariat should as far as possible limit the volume of its documentation, the secretariat of CEPAL is endeavouring gradually to reduce, by summarizing, the volume of its mimeographed documents, which deteriorate rapidly and are not suitable for wide dissemination. On the other hand, it is increasing its production of smaller and better-presented printed publications, which are carefully prepared and are suitable for use in libraries and research and study centres.

5. Thus, in the period between the sixteenth and seventeenth sessions, the secretariat has prepared in its own Reproduction Section two new series of printed publications: Cuadernos de la CEPAL and Cuadernos Estadísticos de la CEPAL. The format of these booklets is agreeable, modern and easy to handle, thus facilitating and reducing the cost of their distribution, and as their sale has been authorized by Headquarters, they also bring in some income. The Cuadernos de la CEPAL series initiated at the end of 1975 already has 16 titles in Spanish and 4 in English, while in the Cuadernos Estadísticos de la CEPAL series which was initiated later, two titles have been published.

6. Up to 1975, CEPAL sent its larger periodical publications to printing firms in Mexico and the United States. In order to reduce the costs involved and keep more direct control over the printing processes, it was decided to have the Spanish and English versions of the Economic Survey and the CEPAL Review printed by publishing firms in Santiago, and this made it possible to include in the programme of external publications such an additional high-cost printed publication as the Statistical Yearbook for Latin America, the first volume of which is in the press.

7. Since the end of 1975, four books have also been published under an agreement with the Fondo de Cultura Económico.

8. In view of the experience gained by the CEPAL/ILPES Reproduction Section in the preparation of the Cuadernos, it has also now begun to print (since 1977) the CEPAL Review, which had hitherto been contracted for outside the Commission. This has been done with the aim of keeping closer control over the delivery dates and the quality of the printing. The necessary reinforcement of staff has been compensated for by the saving involved in not contracting for this work outside.

9. Although a great effort has been made (see in annex 2 the list of studies published by the secretariat of CEPAL in Santiago between the sixteenth and seventeenth sessions), much still remains to be done to improve the dissemination of studies of interest to Member States. Thus, for example, despite the efforts made, the available resources limit the possibilities of publication, particularly in English, and virtually preclude any publications in French.
