EIGHTH MEETING OF THE REGIONAL COUNCIL FOR PLANNING Montevideo, (9 May 1989)	22

FIRST MEETING OF THE TECHNICAL COMMITTEE OF ILPES

Port-of-Spain, Trinidad and Tobago (7 May 1975)

The delegates from virtually all the countries referred to the activities being carried out by ILPES in the areas of advisory assistance, training and research in development planning.

The delegates also referred to the framework of ILPES' future action and expressed their pleasure that new items had been included in its programme of work. In this connection, they considered that the studies envisaged and the political and institutional aspects of the planning process, economic policy and planning, planning models and techniques and the identification of poverty profiles and analysis of social policies were of special importance.

They also re-emphasized the need to continue training activities, by including the analysis of the new aspects which had arisen in recent years in the development processes and the experiences of the countries. With this in mind, it was proposed to resume the Basic Course.

The Technical Committee also stressed that it was a good thing for ILPES to facilitate the exchange of national planning experiences carried out by the respective ministries or departments. ILPES should therefore improve its capacity for studying those experiences and devise mechanisms for placing them at the disposal of the countries. Among the noteworthy concerns of the delegates were the need to prepare studies, courses and provide technical assistance in formulating integrated plans, the application of models and the improvement of the administrative capability of the public sector in order to put the plan into effect.

It was particularly emphasized that ILPES should concern itself with the problems of the Caribbean countries including the preparation and evaluation of projects and studies on rural planning forms and methods, while respecting the special characteristics of those countries. This work of preparation and evaluation should be carried out by ILPES in close co-operation with other organizations of the region, such as the University of the West Indies, CARICOM and the Caribbean Development Bank.

Finally, the UNDP representative reiterated the recommendation contained in resolution 340 (AC.66) that ILPES' sources of financing should be increased and urged the governments of the countries to make voluntary contributions.

As a result of the meeting, the Committee agreed to adopt with satisfaction ILPES' report and programme of work and offered to collaborate actively to ensure its success.

The Committee resolved to set up a technical subcommittee composed of the representatives of the ministries or agencies responsible for planning in the following countries: Panama, Ecuador, Argentina, Venezuela, Mexico, Brazil and Trinidad and Tobago.

This subcommittee will advise the governing body of ILPES which will, therefore, meet more often than the Technical Committee to which it will submit its recommendations. It will also circulate the results of its deliberations to the planning authorities of member countries.

Similarly, in support of this resolution, it is necessary to establish an instrument and mechanisms through which an annual meeting of the technical subcommittee will be held, composed of the ministers or heads of planning in Latin America or the representatives at the highest level. The purpose of the meeting would be to exchange experiences on the subject in order to assist efforts to promote development and at the same time, enhance the services that ILPES offers the countries.

SECOND MEETING OF THE TECHNICAL COMMITTEE OF ILPES

Caracas, Venezuela (15 April 1977)

The first meeting of the Conference of Ministers and Heads of Planning in Latin America was held in Caracas from 13 to 16 April 1977. On the occasion of that meeting the ILPES Technical Committee also met, and after discussing the various aspects of the creation of a co-operation and co-ordination system among the planning agencies of the Latin American and Caribbean region, adopted the following agreements and recommendations:

1. Creation of a system

The important role played by planning in development activities in the Latin American region was again emphasized, as was the need for this function to extend beyond the purely national sphere and to be linked with other countries, in order to promote regional co-operation and achieve more dynamic and comprehensive economic and social development. For these reasons, it was agreed to establish a mechanism which would be called the Co-ordination and Co-operation System among the Planning Agencies of Latin America.

2. Purposes and functions of the system

The main purposes of the system will be to serve as a forum for the planning agencies of the countries of Latin America and the Caribbean and to bring about greater understanding and rapprochement among them to promote and carry out an exchange of national experiences in economic and social planning and to determine ways of pursuing joint action to promote, through planning, suitable mechanisms to strengthen co-operation among the countries of the region. In order to ensure attainment of this objective, the system will have inter alia the following functions:

- a) To further the exchange of experiences, plans, programmes and projects of development, planning legislation and organization and in general, publicize the work produced by the planning agencies that may be of interest to the system;
- b) To make an on-going analysis of the progress made in planning and the obstacles to it;

- c) To encourage joint programming efforts at the regional and subregional levels and among groups of countries, with a view to strengthening the integration process in the region;
- d) To identify joint action which can be included in national development plans and programmes and which could assist the region as a whole or groups of countries, with a view to strengthening regional integration and co-operation;
- e) To promote the exchange of experts among planning agencies and the implementation of joint undertakings among countries;
- f) To promote the exchange of information and joint action with other agencies from the region involved in planning and development, and also with agencies from outside the region.

3. The technical secretariat

It was agreed to recommend to ECLAC that it should adopt a mandate whereby it would become the technical secretariat of the system, while continuing its own activities in the areas of training, research and advisory assistance. In its work as the technical secretariat, ILPES will assist governments in performing the duties listed in paragraph 2, as well as fulfilling any specific mandates which the Conference might establish.

4. Strengthening ILPES and its programme of activities

- a) It was reiterated that the work done by ILPES was of practical value to the governments of many of the countries of Latin America in their efforts to organize planning mechanisms, elaborate development plans and strategies, carry out research and train personnel;
- b) The programme of activities submitted by ILPES for 1977 was considered, and it was recommended:
 - i) that in the field of training, higher priority should be given to the national courses by supporting and encouraging efforts in each country in this direction, and that the Basic Course in Economic Planning and Policy should be taught in each of the different countries of the region in turn;

- ii) that in giving advisory assistance, greater use should be made of Horizontal Technical Co-operation and particularly of the exchange of professionals from planning ministries and agencies;
 - iii) that in conducting research, higher priority should be given to studies of groups of countries, in particular of the relatively less-developed countries and regions.
- c) The training, research and advisory assistance activities referred to should be closely interrelated when being implemented. A strict selectivity approach should be used in respect of advisory assistance.
 - d) It was recommended that ILPES should make a decisive effort to coordinate its programming with similar UNDP and ECLAC programmes which would eliminate unnecessary and expensive duplication of effort.

5. ILPES' financing

- a) In order for ILPES to perform its functions as technical secretariat as well as perform its basic duties, it needs a minimum staff establishment and the necessary resources for its operation. The Committee recommended that the governing body of ILPES submit to the governments by the end of the year, a programme budget in the region of US$ 2 200 for the year 1978;
- b) It was agreed to request UNDP to continue giving ILPES maximum financial support;
- c) It was agreed to ask the Executive Secretary of ECLAC that, at the Guatemala meeting, ECLAC should request that the temporary budget support approved by the General Assembly and the 39th session should become permanent and should be increased with effect from January 1978.
- d) It was recommended that an adequate proportion of the United Nations funds earmarked for planning should be channelled through ILPES.
- e) In order to collect the sum referred to in subparagraph 5 a) above, the countries recognized the need to make a collective effort to contribute a minimum of US$600 000 per year. This contribution could be made in the following ways: i) through a direct budgetary contribution; ii) by contributing a percentage of the indicative figure of the national UNDP programme; iii) through income for overhead expenses in executing technical assistance agreements; iv) through a contribution of man/months financed by each country.

- f) In order for ILPES to be able to carry out the 1977 programme of activities, the Committee agreed to request the countries to expedite their decisions in respect of subparagraph e) above. The ILPES Technical Subcommittee was also requested to meet whenever it deemed necessary, to analyse and support the formulas which would enable the financial problems to be resolved in the second half of 1977. It was also agreed to request UNDP to give the fullest co-operation possible during this transitional phase of ILPES.

THIRD MEETING OF THE TECHNICAL COMMITTEE OF ILPES

Lima, Peru (16 November 1978)

Recommendations of the Technical Committee of ILPES on the Programme of Work

The Programme of Work submitted by ILPES was adopted and supported by the Technical Committee of ILPES. Almost all the speakers expressed the appreciation of their governments for the role that ILPES had played as the centre from which the advances made in planning in Latin America originated and were disseminated, and also for the work that ILPES had done in providing training in specialized areas. It was also noted with satisfaction that the Programme of Work faithfully incorporated the recommendations of the Technical Subcommittee and of the Ministerial Meeting in Caracas. It was, therefore, certain that the fifth phase of the programme would record significant advances in the work undertaken and in the procedures used to achieve its goals, and that more efficient use would be made of the resources available to the Institute.

A number of delegates emphasized the usefulness of strengthening them by all possible means, and stressed the importance of the aspects concerning linkage and mutual support among the different programmes so that they would be mutually enriching; in addition, they advocated stronger links and adaptation to the Latin American situation, which would render ILPES more dynamic and flexible in its efforts to meet the specific needs of the different countries. That situation required a recognition of the multifaceted plurality which characterizes our countries.

The Technical Committee adopted the following recommendations:

1. To give attention first and foremost to research in and advisory assistance to development planning in the small countries, by specifically introducing the variable of spatial development. The results should be disseminated through courses held on the subject. It was also recommended that special efforts should be made to extend ILPES' services to the non-Spanish speaking countries of the Caribbean. It was, therefore, suggested that these problems should be discussed at the forthcoming Havana Meeting and proposals submitted on possible measures.

2. To give strong encouragement to horizontal co-operation among the countries which received contributions from ILPES, whether in the form of technical personnel and financing of travel expenses and living expenses so that better use may be made of the resources available for planning in the region, and so that the ILPES' programme may take advantage more and more of the practical experience of the planners from Latin America and the Caribbean and enable an exchange of experiences to assist the countries concerned. It was recommended that a regional inventory of the human resources in this field should be established.
3. To expedite and extend co-operation between ILPES and national training centres, in order to make greater use of the skills and experiences developed by these centres and to disseminate the services offered more widely and make greater use of the Institute's resources. The possibility of holding a regular central planning course or other forms of subregional courses at different headquarters was a possibility that should be considered. ILPES should, as a rule, endeavour to secure association with national centres, in order to pursue international training activities in those centres provided that they fulfil the necessary technical conditions and that the respective governments could collaborate in financing them.
4. To give greater consideration to the social aspects, as an indispensable component of global planning, taking care to ensure that they were executed as a part of the various ILPES' programmes. In this connection, after the experience of the social planning course had been evaluated, consideration should be given to continuing and extending it in the countries of the region.
5. To ensure that the results of Latin American experience in planning and the new techniques worked out at the major academic centres were systematically incorporated into the programmes of work. To achieve this, the countries would have to be encouraged to take an active part in the design, content and execution of those programmes and at the same time they should maintain links among themselves. Special care should be taken to avoid the most common errors and to find solutions to practical problems. Emphasis should also be placed on the effective application of the recommendations on planning.
6. To develop the project of the Information System or Network for Planning and to use it as a support for the different programmes. In particular, to use this project to help solve the language barriers which have prevented widespread dissemination of ILPES' services and to try to have a more extensive dissemination covering all level of work involved in planning, and to extend it to all interest groups within the countries.

7. To pay greater attention to the problems of participation involved in planning, with a view to securing a basic consensus which will strengthen its viability and importance.
8. To pay more attention to the development of evaluation methods and systems for planning, which are compatible with the various characteristics and planning mechanisms of the region, and emphasize policy evaluation. In particular, it was recommended that the regular evaluation proposed by ILPES for the development of planning in Latin America should be started immediately, so that a regular report could be produced which would be useful to the countries. It should be pointed out that note was taken of how ambitious this undertaking was, but because of its importance it was deemed appropriate to begin it as soon as possible.
9. In keeping with the recommendations of the recent World Conference on Technical Co-operation among Developing Countries held in Buenos Aires and stated in the Plan of Action, and with the position adopted by the Latin American countries at different meetings, it was resolved to give the greatest possible support to horizontal co-operation with other regions, in particular with Asia and Africa where contacts had been already made at the above mentioned Conference. In this connection, the management of ILPES was requested to participate in the work that had been initiated by ECLAC and the Economic Commission for Africa (ECA), by giving effect to the proposal for horizontal co-operation with the participation of the countries of the region and support from the ECLAC Secretariat and ILPES. It was resolved furthermore, to send a message of greeting from the Second Conference of Ministers and Heads of Planning of Latin America and the Caribbean to the Conference of Planners of Africa, to be held next December, and to express support for the co-operation initiatives to be undertaken jointly between the African planners and the Co-operation and Co-ordination System among the Planning Agencies of Latin America.
10. To consider modalities to obtain academic credit to graduates of ILPES courses in order to make a proper evaluation of the worth of the studies undertaken.
11. To strive to channel greater financial resources to enable ILPES complete its programmes satisfactorily, extend and improve them as recommended. Regardless of the international contributions, it is considered that it is a fundamental responsibility of the governments to ensure that ILPES can increase its capacity for non-remunerated support. As a supplement to this, it was suggested that new forms of cooperation should be explored which, through changes in the work systems, would enable ILPES to act more effectively without drawing too heavily on the available resources. Such a task would need the interest and decisive support of the countries in order to promote the use of national technical skills.

Finally, the meeting through its Chairman expressed satisfaction at the useful debate that had taken place which was attributable to the frank dialogue that had been held and the quality of the documents submitted by ILPES.

On the question of financing, the Chairman of the Technical Committee drew attention to the considerable importance of the matter of finance and added that the new responsibilities being assigned to ILPES would have to be evaluated in the light of the necessary resources. In other words, ILPES' activities would have to be costed in order to ensure that the contributions from the governments and other contributions would be enough to guarantee that its activities were carried out.

The Delegate of Colombia stressed the need for ILPES to have the financial resources to carry out its programme, so that the new Director of ILPES could fulfil the responsibilities placed upon him. He suggested that more specific proposals for contributions should be made. The Delegate of Colombia added that a submission of the accurate financial requirements for carrying out the programmes would be most useful to the United Nations Development Programme in its consideration of contributions to ILPES.

The Technical Committee supported the initiatives of the Chairman and of the Delegate of Colombia.

The representative of Honduras proposed that assistance should be provided to assess the fulfilment of recommendations. This proposal was adopted by the Committee.

The Director Designate of ILPES said that he was extremely satisfied with the proposals to assess ILPES' activities in order to estimate its resource requirements.

The Delegate of Mexico suggested that a comparative analysis of the long-term development strategies should be included in ILPES' research work, as this could provide a perspective for orienting ILPES' activities.

FOURTH MEETING OF THE TECHNICAL COMMITTEE OF ILPES

Guatemala City, Guatemala (23 November 1980)

Summary of conclusions and recommendations

1. With respect to the Programme of Work:

- a) To examine the link between national plans and plans covering a subregion;
- b) To include energy problems when considering development plans;
- c) To study more closely the planning situation in Latin America;
- d) To examine the link between economic plans and policies;
- e) To make a thorough study of the methodologies to be used in the planning process;
- f) To continue strengthening co-operation among training centres;
- g) To give particular emphasis to strengthening mutual support among planners;
- h) To incorporate the technical contributions of national agencies in the comparative studies done by ILPES;
- i) To strengthen the research programme;
- j) To stress the social content in global planning.

2. Several ministers raised the matter of financing, pointing out inter alia the need for the countries to give greater financial support to ILPES, and for shared costs systems to be established along the lines of the system used between the governments and the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP). They further suggested the use of indicative UNDP figures and other methods that should be considered very carefully, such as the direct contribution of experts from the countries in activities of priority interest, which could then be supported by ILPES. The Technical Subcommittee considered the ILPES Report of Activities to be a good one.

3. With respect to UNDP support, the Committee supported a resolution thanking UNDP for the recent contributions that it had made so far, and urged it to continue its collaboration since ILPES was a priority project for the countries. The Committee members also undertook to take the necessary steps through their Permanent Representative to the United Nations.
4. The Permanent Representative of UNDP then referred to future financing and made the commitment to convey to the high authorities of UNDP the demonstrations of support to ILPES from the governments of the region.
5. Lastly, the Technical Committee resolved to meet again during the Nineteenth ECLAC session in Montevideo, Uruguay, to examine in greater detail the sources of financing for the ILPES programme and to study carefully the specific projects, which the ILPES management was carrying out.

Resolutions

Considering:

That it is desirable for a regional institution such as ILPES to pursue studies on the planning process in Latin America and to continue to serve the governments in those areas that they request, within the framework of this subject.

That given the volume of work, and the international increases in cost it is necessary to continue to rely on the traditional sources which have supported ILPES' activities so far, namely the ministers and heads of planning.

Agree:

To express appreciation for the valuable support that UNDP has provided ILPES, primarily for its operation; and

To request UNDP to continue its support for the Institution, increasing also the amount of its financial support.

To take all the necessary steps to strengthen the financing of ILPES.

Considering the desirability of giving effect to the recommendations made during the meeting of the Technical Subcommittee and to adopt the decisions that these recommendations imply, the members of the Committee:

Agree:

To recommend to the Chairman of the Committee that a meeting of the Technical Subcommittee of ILPES be held in Montevideo, during the second fortnight of April 1981, on the occasion of the next meeting of the Economic Commission for Latin America (ECLAC).

That at that meeting, particular attention should be given to adopting those measures required for the stable and adequate financing of ILPES.

To recommend to ILPES that it prepare the necessary background information and that it design possible financing alternatives in consultation with the governments. These alternatives should submit the regular activities of ILPES separately from the special activities on specific items or for specific objectives.

FIFTH MEETING OF THE TECHNICAL COMMITTEE OF ILPES

Buenos Aires, Argentina, 10 May 1983

Considering:

That in June 1983 the ILPES has completed 21 years in the service of the planning bodies of the region, which it has greatly helped to strengthen.

That although the Institute is a permanent body of the United Nations, the United Nations has not guaranteed that it will provide the regular financial support necessary for the performance of the Institute's activities.

That the new programme of work adopted at the Fifth Meeting of the Technical Subcommittee (November 1982) and endorsed at the present meeting reflects the priorities established by the governments, including the priority put on expanding and strengthening the work in Central America and the Caribbean.

That there has been a substantial reduction in the financing from the main source, i.e., the United Nations Development Programme.

The Technical Committee of the Latin American Institute for Economic and Social Planning agrees to the text of this resolution:

1. Recognizes that the Latin American Institute for Economic and Social Planning is a body which is needed for planning and co-ordinating the economic and social policies in the region by means of the technical contributions it makes its terms of advisory services, research and training.
2. Exhorts the governments of the region to give the highest priority to defending the financing of the Latin American Institute for Economic and Social Planning in the forums of international bodies.
3. Considering that it is becoming necessary to establish a regular system of supplementary financing so that the Institute can be definitively consolidated.
4. Decides that this system will be based on inter alia voluntary contributions as determined by each country and that these contributions will be in convertible currency but can include national currency.

5. Decides that the countries will confirm the amount of their contributions no later than the end of October 1983 since those contributions must be taken into account in calculating the resources for the 1984 budget of the Institute.
6. Directs the Institute to keep the Technical Subcommittee informed of the implementation of these agreements.

It is agreed that the site of the next meeting of the Technical Subcommittee will be Mexico City.

SIXTH MEETING OF THE TECHNICAL COMMITTEE OF ILPES

- v) Thanks the member governments for their contributions to the New Institutional Project of ILPES and requests those member governments which have not yet contributed to the New Institutional Project to give their most urgent consideration to bringing their regular contributions to the Latin American Institute for Economic and Social Planning up to date, in order to establish a minimum technical capacity which can respond to the requirements of the governments;
- vi) Expresses its satisfaction concerning the working relationships between ILPES and the Department of Technical Co-operation for Development (DTCD) and international bodies such as the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) and the World Bank.

With regard to the decentralization of ILPES' activities:

 - i) To change the name of the Latin American Institute for Economic and Social Planning to "Latin American and Caribbean Institute for Economic and Social Planning".
 - ii) To retain the acronym "ILPES" for the abbreviated denomination of the Institute, considering its generalized use in all languages and its recognition throughout the region.
5. Notes with satisfaction and expresses its gratitude for the offer of Colombia to host the Eighth Meeting of the Technical Sub-Committee of ILPES, which is expected to be held at the end of 1985 or beginning of 1986.
6. Recommends to the member governments that, in so far as they are able and within the framework of their national priorities, they consider the use of sources of co-operation, whether multilateral, bilateral, public, private or of any other description, in support of specific activities which might be requested from ILPES.
7. Commends the Department of Planning and Budget of Mexico on the excellent way in which it organized the meeting and thanks the Department of Foreign Relations for its contribution to the success of the Sixth Meeting of the Technical Committee of ILPES.

RESOLUTION CRP.IX.01

The IXth Regional Council for Planning

Approves with satisfaction the 1991 activity report presented by ILPES, together with the guidelines for 1992, and appreciates the efforts made to progressively concentrate its endeavors on a central core of priority activities.

Expresses its appreciation of the Institute's high standard of technical output, having regard to the reduction in its personnel and the financial difficulties with which it has been confronted.

Supports the initiative to make further concentration in ILPES program of activities, within its working guidelines for the future, with more specific and specialized attention to the field of strategic State management, within the framework of long-term plans and strategies, and in keeping with the new developments taking place in the region.

Expresses its approval of the efforts made to seek greater synergy with the basic work of the ECLAC Secretariat, compatible with the specific institutional identity of ILPES. It further recognizes the need for the Institute to broaden its institutional ties with those public bodies directly related to its new basic profile.

Recognizes that the changes currently taking place call for adjustments and modifications in its institutional organization as well as within the public administration itself, stresses the important part which ILPES has to play -given its technical capabilities and its role as a catalyst- in supporting the regional governments in these processes, and urges it to take up with determination the challenges presented by the need for adjustment and change.

RESOLUTION CRP.IX.02

The IXth Regional Council for Planning

Renews its commitment to the second phase of the New Institutional Project and encourages all Member Governments to expedite payment of their 1992 financial contributions.

Recognizes and expresses its appreciation for the effort made by some Member Governments in 1991 to bring their contributions up to date.

Calls upon those Member Governments whose contributions for previous years are still in arrears to make a determined effort to pay their outstanding contributions.

Confers a special mandate upon the Directorate of the Institute to make the necessary representations to the Governments concerned with a view to securing timely payment of such contributions, given the negative impact on the implementation of the working programme of ILPES caused by delays in the payment of government contributions.

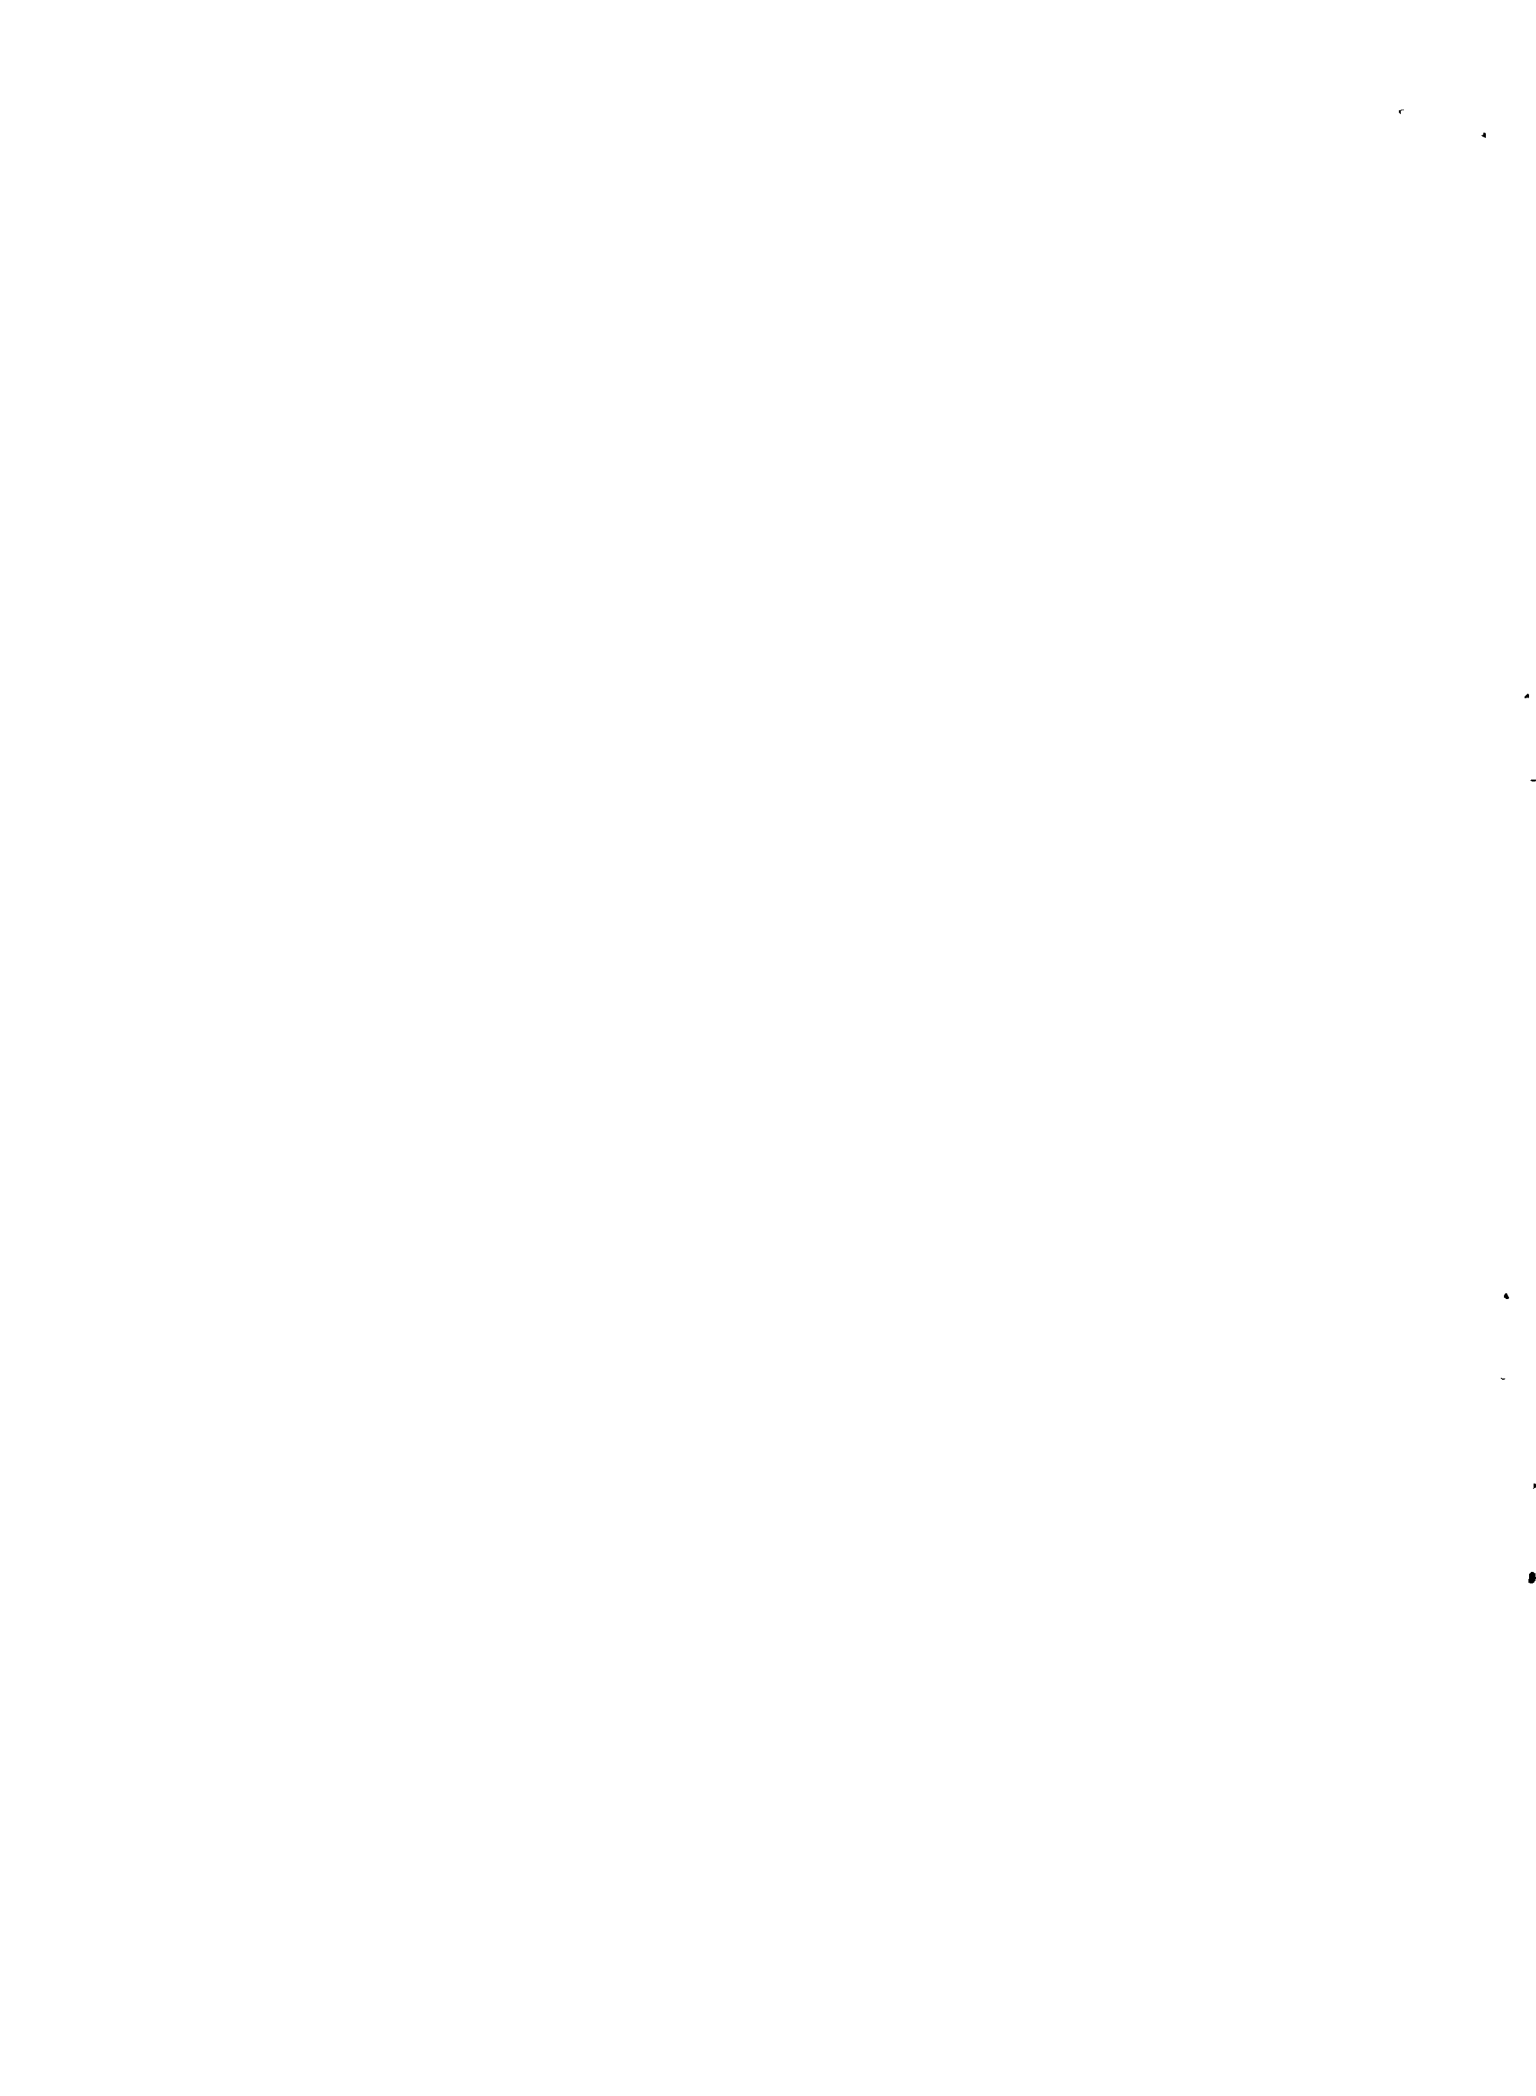

RESOLUTION CRP.IX.03

The IXth Regional Council For Planning:

Fully supports the efforts made by the Directorate General of ILPES to obtain additional financial support from governments of non-member countries, and asks those governments to give particular attention to any proposals submitted to them, in view of the urgent need to regularise and consolidate the budget sustaining the Institute's working programme.

Calls upon the international cooperation agencies of non-member governments to bestow preferential attention on the specific projects submitted for their consideration by ILPES.

Expresses its appreciation to the governments of non-member countries that have lent continuing support to the work of the Institute, in particular France, Italy, the Netherlands and Spain. At the same time, it requests these countries to maintain, and, where possible, increase their contributions, as well as expedite their procedures of project evaluation and release of funds, once a project has been approved.

RESOLUTION CRP.IX.04

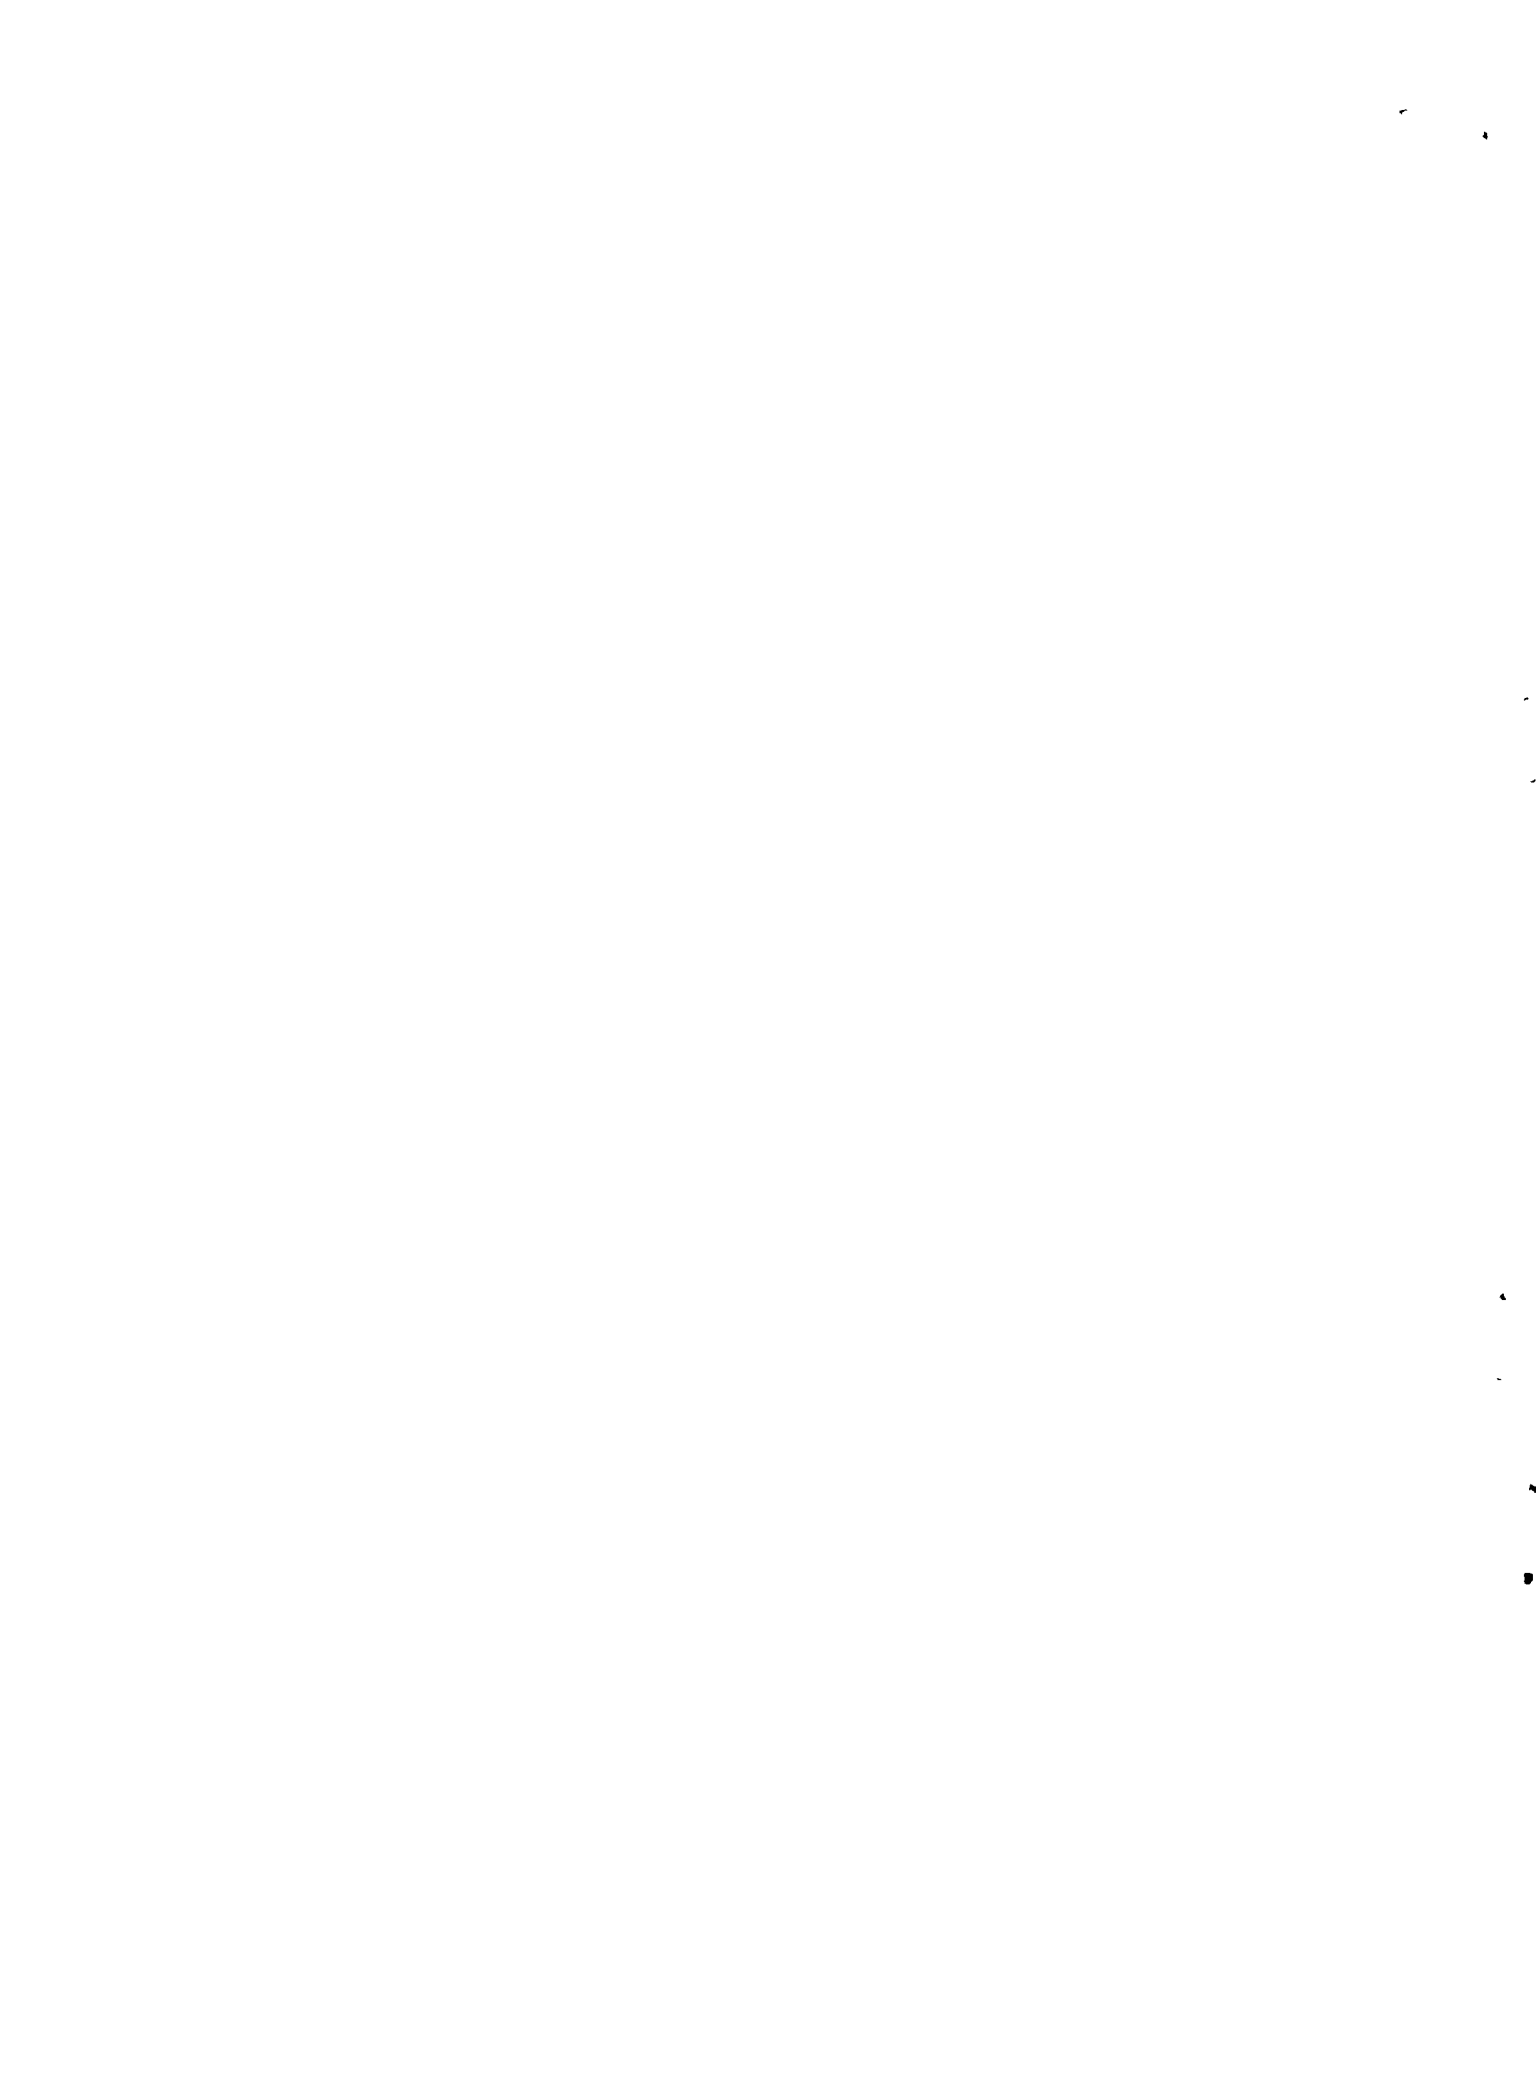

The IXth Regional Council For Planning:

Appreciates the support it has received from the Inter-American Development Bank and from the United Nations Development Programme through the financing of regional projects and national activities implemented by ILPES in various countries in the region.

Requests the authorities of both agencies to continue to provide their decisive support to make possible the implementation by ILPES of projects benefiting the countries in the region.

Further asks their authorities to approve the regional projects submitted for their consideration, given their unquestionable usefulness for an active exchange of experiences for which purpose ILPES may act as a catalyst.

Suggests the joint evaluation with the Institute of ways of implementing national activities that will permit the transfer and accumulation of knowledge and experience on a regional or sub-regional basis.

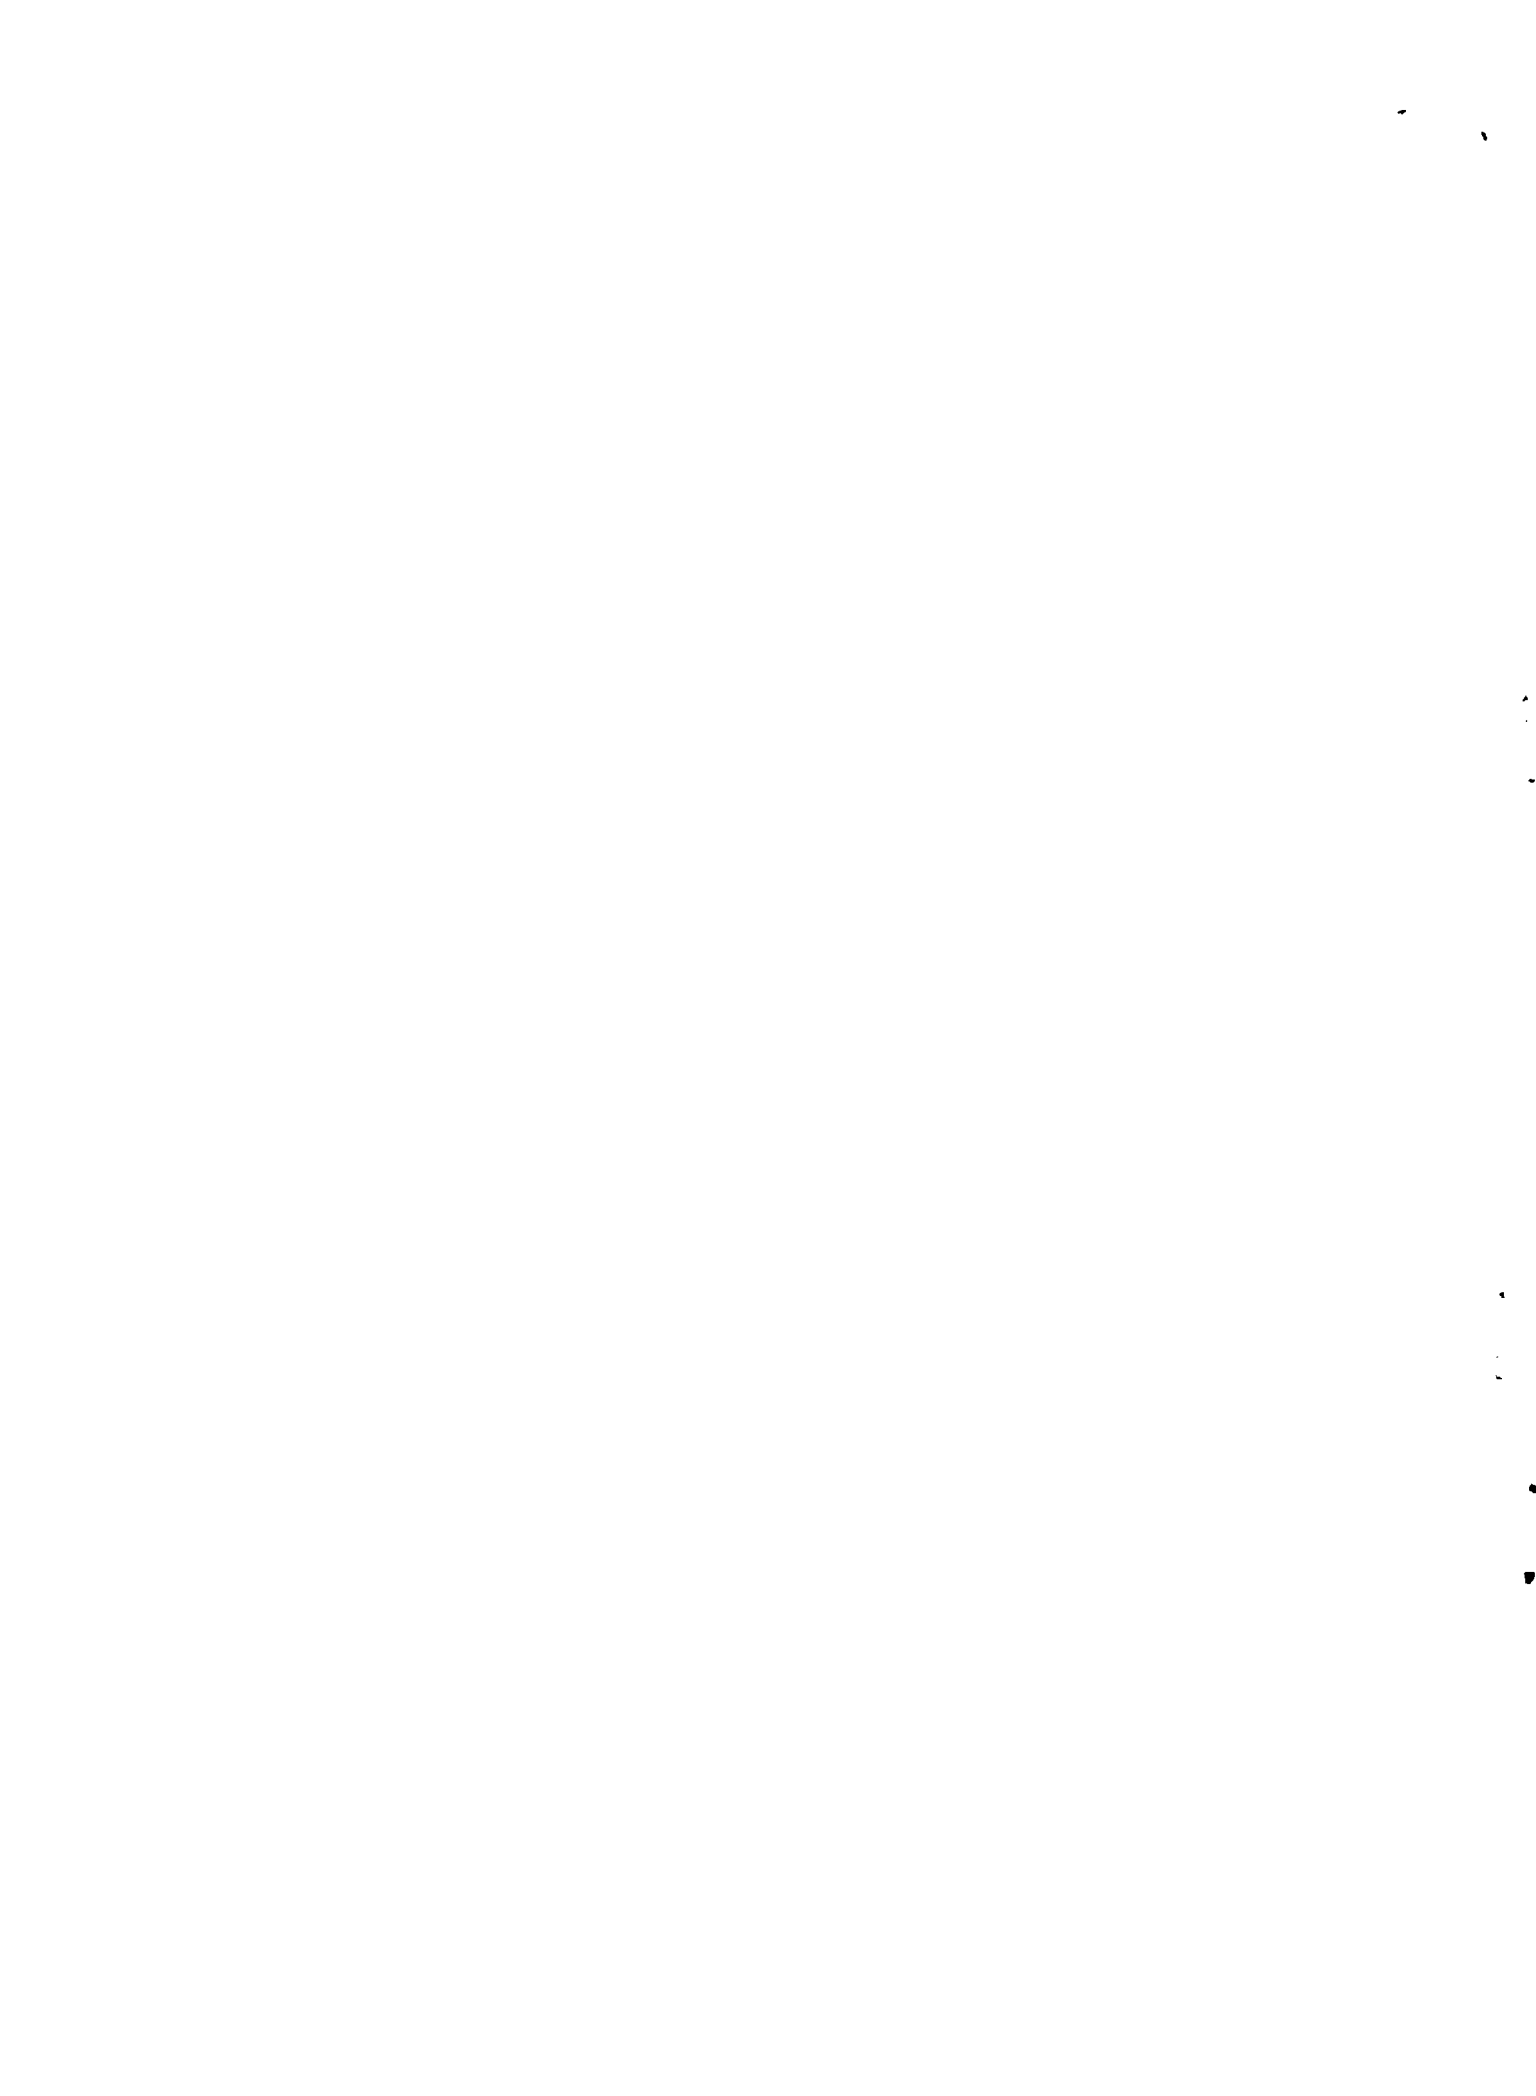

RESOLUTION CRP.IX.05

The IXth Regional Council for Planning:

Considering the desire of the Member Governments to receive more information with respect to the procedure of appointment of the Director General of ILPES; and having regard to the fact that there are major institutional, functional and financial aspects connected to the future of ILPES and its related bodies which require fuller analysis and discussion as well as consultations with their respective governments

Decides to postpone discussion to the next Sessions of the Economic Commission for Latin America (Santiago de Chile, April 8-15, 1992)

RESOLUTION CRP.IX.06

The IXth Regional Council For Planning:

Expresses its appreciation to the Government of Argentina for offering to host the next Meeting of the Presiding Officers of this Council.

Approves that the XVth Meeting of Presiding Officers of the Regional Planning Council be held in the city of Buenos Aires in the fourth quarter of 1992.
