FOREWORD

In response to the widespread interest that was evoked by the previous issue of this publication, this updated issue of "Major Statistical Publications - Abstracts", is presented for widespread use. This document is seen by ECLAC to be an element of meta-data in that it is a guide to the contents of the major statistical publications in the Caribbean.

The Abstracts refer to documents that have kept their original names unchanged as well as those whose names may have changed over time, but whose content has remained with the same basic focus over the years. In some cases, a publication may have been discontinued. More often than not it would be subsumed under the offerings of another publication. These cases have been clearly indicated in the document.

The importance of a document such as this cannot be overstated. It provides a ready guide to the data seeker as to where she or he can turn for the information needed. It constitutes a valuable element of the meta-data system and will soon be made accessible to the researchers who remotely access the statistics offerings of ECLAC/CDCC.

The ECLAC Subregional Headquarters for the Caribbean and Secretariat for the Caribbean Development and Cooperation Committee (CDCC), commends this document to the researcher.

MAJOR STATISTICAL PUBLICATIONSABSTRACTS

This document addresses the ongoing need to provide information about the data sources at national level in the CDCC countries. It therefore excludes publications of regional or international agencies. Through the present document, the reader can gain an appreciation of the nature and scope of the data collection and analysis that take place in the various countries. It is a subset of what should be done at national level. Whereas the scope of this document is confined to "major publications", the statistical offices of the several countries would do well to conduct similar and more exhaustive inventories of information that is processed and published within the nation. It is the first step towards the rationalisation of data presented to the public. Often several agencies publish different figures that purport to measure the same phenomenon without adequate prefacing of their work. The result is a confusion in the mind of the user as to which is the "correct" figure. It may well be that both figures are correct in terms of the methodology behind their derivation. Proper prefacing would make these differences clear and put to rest any tendency towards confusion. The preparation of the suggested inventories will lay the groundwork for a discussion of ways and means in which the data collection effort could be streamlined and made more efficient and cost-effective.

The present document should be of special appeal to those who guide the development of the statistical services of their countries. The opportunity that is herein afforded to make country comparisons as regards the quantum and quality of the data collected. The extent to which the statistical apparatus tracks the changes in the external environment can be observed by the extent to which new series are produced. For example, statistics on bankruptcies of firms are now demanded so that an appreciation of the problem can be gained.

An attempt is made to structure the document to be of maximum use to the researcher. The records are structured to present information on the following:

Country
Publisher
Document name
ISSN number
Frequency of publication
Abstract

The coding scheme for country accords with the DEVSIS classification that is familiar to documentalists. Its use in this document therefore affords a ready assimilation into the work of the library personnel.

The publisher of a given document may change from time to time. This would normally present a problem of recording the change. In the present document an attempt is made to provide a trail of the changes in publisher as well as document name as these changes take place over time.

Very few titles included in this document have standardized classification numbers, such as the ISSN or ISBN codes. Publishers are encouraged to seek the assistance of the documentalist to acquire these numbers. The document provides information on the periodicity of publication (frequency) of the offerings.

The abstract is a short description of the contents of the document. It indicates the type of information that can be obtained from the documents and is in fact a first point of contact between the researcher and the database. The records presented are the combination of the items discussed - the Country name, the Publisher, the Document name, the ISSN number, the Frequency and the Abstract. These combine to give the researcher a wealth of information with which to approach the documentalist when seeking information on statistics.

This document has been refined by updates provided by the countries. Further vigilance will provide more updates to future versions of the publication. The ECLAC/CDCC Secretariat urges the national entities to undertake the inventory exercise and update the present document in the light of their findings.
