4. Other matters.

D. SUMMARY OF PROCEEDINGS

Report on the thirty-sixth session of ECLAC, Mexico City, 23-27 May 2016 (agenda item 2)

9. The Executive Secretary of ECLAC reported on the organization of work of the thirty-sixth session of the Commission, which would be held in Mexico City from 23 to 27 May 2016. She said that the session was the most important intergovernmental conference for steering the work of ECLAC. It served as a forum for consideration of the most pressing economic and social development issues for the countries of the region, as well as an occasion to review the progress made by the Commission. The Governments of the member States would also have an opportunity to examine the work conducted by ECLAC during the past two years and to adopt a programme of work and calendar of conferences that would establish the terms of reference for the future work of the Commission. As usual, the Committee on South-South Cooperation would also meet in the framework of the session.

10. Referring to the position document prepared by the secretariat, Horizons 2030: equality at the centre of sustainable development, she said that the prevailing development pattern was unsustainable because it was linked to a slowdown in output and trade (recessionary bias) and high inequality with serious social, political and economic consequences, and because it was causing often irreversible environmental degradation, with potentially disastrous consequences for the planet. The environmental impacts that had already occurred represented the greatest market failure of all time, hence the importance of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. She noted that the imbalances caused by the tendency to perpetuate the prevailing development pattern must be addressed by implementing the Sustainable Development Goals and that the international community, through an open discussion process, had outlined the desirable characteristics of the new development pattern. That outline had been transposed into the 2030 Agenda, a civilizing endeavour that put people at the centre of development, safeguarded the planet and strove to achieve shared prosperity through a universal agenda that proposed growth for equality and equality for growth.

11. The Executive Secretary noted that the document to be presented at the thirty-sixth session offered analysis from different angles that complemented the 2030 Agenda. It contained assessments and analysis, grounded in development theory, of how to link different parts of the Agenda and make them more coherent; it discussed factors for the implementation of the Agenda linked to the international and regional situation; it analysed the global public goods and national policies that the new development pattern would require; and it examined, in the framework of the international political economy, national coalitions that could support the new pattern. The region was facing temporary and structural challenges—on the one hand, a more complex global context and, on the other, an economic and social lag—and ECLAC proposed addressing those challenges by means of an environmental big push towards equality and sustainability in development. She emphasized the need to bring about a progressive structural change that would embed knowledge much more intensively in production, ensure social inclusion and combat the negative effects of climate change.

12. In the discussion that ensued, several delegations commended ECLAC on the technical quality of the document Horizons 2030: equality at the centre of sustainable development and on attracting such high-level panellists to participate in the discussions at the thirty-sixth session.

13. The representative of Mexico welcomed the secretariat's decision to focus the discussions at the thirty-sixth session on the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and its implementation in the region. He also commended the technical rigour of the ECLAC position document and its timely dissemination.

14. A number of Caribbean representatives took the opportunity to express their satisfaction with the Commission's work to devise debt relief mechanisms for the small island developing States in the subregion.

Report on the consultation process regarding establishment of the Forum of the Countries of Latin America and the Caribbean on Sustainable Development, by virtue of resolution 695(PLN.16-E), adopted at the sixteenth extraordinary session of the Committee of the Whole (Santiago, April 2015) (agenda item 3)

15. Under this agenda item, Gustavo Meza-Cuadra, Permanent Representative of Peru to the United Nations, in his capacity as Chair of the Committee of the Whole, reported on the consultations carried out in relation to the establishment of the Forum of the Countries of Latin America and the Caribbean on Sustainable Development. He said that more than 10 meetings had been held, attended by many member States, and he thanked the secretariat for its support during that process.

16. The Deputy Executive Secretary for Management and Programme Analysis of ECLAC gave an oral statement on the financial implications of establishing the Forum of the Countries of Latin America and the Caribbean on Sustainable Development.²

17. Lastly, the Committee of the Whole unanimously adopted the outcome document included in resolution 696(PLN.31), the text of which is reproduced in annex 1.

² See annex 2.

Recalling that the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, inter alia, recognizes the importance of building on existing follow-up and review mechanisms at the regional level and allowing adequate policy space, encourages all Member States to identify the most suitable regional forum in which to engage, as well as United Nations regional commissions to continue supporting Member States in this regard, and establishes guiding principles for follow-up and review processes at all levels, taking into account different national realities, capacities and levels of development, respecting policy space and priorities, while remaining consistent with international rules and commitments, and recognizing that the outcome from national-level processes will be the foundation for reviews at the regional and global levels, given that the global review will be primarily based on national official data sources,

Welcoming General Assembly resolution 69/313, entitled “Addis Ababa Action Agenda of the Third International Conference on Financing for Development”, which, inter alia, commits Member States to fully engage, nationally, regionally and internationally, in ensuring proper and effective follow-up of the financing for development outcomes and all the means of implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, and encourages the United Nations regional commissions, in cooperation with regional banks and organizations, to mobilize their expertise and existing mechanisms, which could focus on thematic aspects of the Addis Ababa Action Agenda,

Recalling General Assembly resolutions 61/16 and 68/1, which, inter alia, urge the United Nations regional commissions to contribute, within their mandates, to the review of progress made in the implementation of and follow-up to the outcomes of the major United Nations conferences and summits, and resolution 66/288, in which countries agreed to strengthen the Economic and Social Council as a principal body in the integrated and coordinated follow-up of the outcomes of all major United Nations conferences and summits in the economic, social, environmental and related fields,

Recalling also General Assembly resolution 67/290, which, inter alia, acknowledges the importance of the regional dimension of sustainable development, and invites the United Nations regional commissions to contribute to the work of the High-level Political Forum on Sustainable Development, including through annual regional meetings, with the involvement of other relevant regional entities, major groups and other relevant stakeholders, as appropriate,

Emphasizing the importance of establishing a regional forum to follow up and review progress on the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, including for, inter alia, strengthening coherence and coordination, promoting cooperation and providing policy guidance, fostering national capacity-building, hosting voluntary State-led national reviews, identifying regional gaps, emerging challenges and shared targets, fostering peer learning by sharing good practices, experiences and lessons learned, helping to mobilize the necessary means of implementation, encouraging participation of all relevant stakeholders, providing a platform for partnerships, favouring people-centred policies and actions, transparency and accountability, and promoting the development, dissemination, diffusion and transfer of environmentally sound technologies,

Recognizing that there are different approaches, visions, models and tools available to each country, in accordance with its national circumstances and priorities, to achieve sustainable development; and reaffirming that planet Earth and its ecosystems are our common home and that “Mother Earth” is a common expression in a number of countries and regions,

Emphasizing the importance of system-wide strategic planning, implementation and reporting in order to ensure coherent and integrated support by the United Nations development system for the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and of the financing for development processes, including at the regional level, taking into account other regional and subregional processes promoting the impact of international development cooperation,

Taking into consideration the special needs and particular challenges of landlocked developing countries, and recognizing the special sustainable development challenges facing small island developing States, middle-income countries, least developed countries, countries in situations of conflict and post-conflict countries,
